Chapter 1 by Popwire

I am going to middle school next year. In middle school, it really matters if you are a nerd, a dummy, a weird person, or a popular person. There's this really popular girl. Her name is Hannah. She thinks she's the best. She's really girly and she's such a brat. Me and my friends don't like her. She also always says bad words and she is really rude. She acts like she's nice around some people, but a lot of people really know that she's not nice. She's mean. My name is Sophia. I have three other friends. Emma, Isabella, and Zoe.

"Hey! Don't worry about Middle School social rankings, IT DOESN'T MATTER WHERE YOU STAND. Just be your self and ignore that Hannah person!", my mom said at the dinner table.

Chapter 3 by _Unknown_

"Well, okay. I'll try," I said as I grabbed my plate and walked to the sink. I placed my plate in the sink and walked away.

"Hey, I believe in you!" my mom said cheerfully as I walked up the stairs to my room. I put on my pajamas and laid in bed thinking...

was a big red button calling to me. I couldn't help but push it, hoping something good would happen. It started to get very cold. There was a large gust of wind and a tornado started right in the house. I started to get lifted off the ground. I went up very fast but didn't know what happened after that.

I had woken up. At breakfast, I had told my mom about the nightmare I had, which I knew was a big mistake. Again, she started to lecture me about how I shouldn't worry, just as she had done yesterday during dinner.

Right before I walked outside to get to the bus, my mom squeezed my hand.

"Have a great day! You need to believe in yourself, just as I believe in you! Listen, that Hannah person is just-" she managed to say before I quickly slipped out the door.
